

A new word

Here is an English sentence with a nonsense word in it:

“After the monster had shunk its prey, it dragged it back into the cave.”

Fill in the other forms in the following sentences:

“She used to _____ groundhogs.”

“Now she _____ possums for a living.”

“When she was in Eugene she _____ thirty-three possums in one day.”

Then she took us possum-_____ in the Cascades.”

One possible answer is as follows:

“She used to shunk groundhogs.”

“Now she shunks possums for a living.”

“When she was in Eugene she shunked thirty-three possums in one day.”

Then she took us possum- shunking in the Cascades.”